Alexandria Gazette. SATURDAY EVENING, DEC. 13, 1902

If the average bachelor, with a mildonaire's income, not the fellow who goes in for extravagant fads, but the man who maintains good social position and who cutertains liberally, were to balance up his personal account for the year, it might contain these charges without comparative extravagance: House or apartment and service $10,000 urant and entertaining......

Horses, coach, grooms, etc..... $59,500

These are the more or less fixed items of expense, and any one who has ever attempted to keep a personal account knows that when you have put down the necessary expenses you may add almost as much for the thousand and one things that may be grouped conveniently under the head of "incidental expenses." In a gen-eral way it may be said that the milllonnire bachelor who spends from $75,000 to $100,000 a year is living his life in accordance with the demands of the time on men of wealth.-Ains-

Turn round, and, with your back to the table, ask somebody to throw the dice. Then tell the person who threw them to double the number of the spots on the die on the left, and keep the number to himself. Tell him to add five, then multiply by five. To this figure have him add the number of spots on the die in the middle and multiply the product by ten.

Then ask him to multiply the number of spots on the third die and give you the aggregate sum. From the amount subtract mentally 250, and the remainder will show in the three figures the number of spots on each of the three dice. For instance, take three dice. Their numbers are three, five and two. Double the one on the left-five plus five equals ten. Add five, equals fiffive. Add the number of spots on the die in the middle, three, equals seventy-eight. Multiply by ten, equals 780. Add number of spots on the third die, two, equals 782. Subtract 250 and 532 remains, which are numbers on the

Why the Audience Laughed, At a public entertainment recently a conjurer had an experience which was highly comical, though quite disastrous from a professional point of view.

Having produced an egg from a previously empty bag, he announced that he would follow up this trick by bringing from the bag the hen that laid the This little arrangement he left to his confederate to carry out. He proceeded to draw the bird from the bag, but what was his surprise on finding that the alleged hen was an old rooster, which strutted about the stage with ruffled feathers and offended dignity and set up as vigorous a crowing as if it had just awakened from its nocturnal slumbers.

The whole audience shrieked with laughter, and the unfortunate conjurer made a bolt for the dressing room.

The tumbleweed is a curious plant indigenous to the western prairies. It grows in all directions from a central stem, making a large flat head, close to the ground. In the fall, after being touched by the frost or dried by the weather, the stem breaks off, the head becomes the sport of the wind and is driven off across the prairie, scattering seeds as it goes and finally bringing up against some obstruction which arrests seen piled ten feet high against a fence, driven there by the wind.

Jack Tar as a Critic.

At an auction art sale the other day a marine ylew was about to be knocked down at a handsome figure when a der in, exclaimed earnestly: "My stars, if there ain't a vessel drifting on to the rocks with a strong breeze blowing offshore!" The artist took his work home to re-
